Pastor's Piece

Dear Folks,

In Saint Paul's letter to Philemon, we see an example of the development of doctrine. Saint Paul tries to use persuasion and argumentation to try to convince Philemon that he should release Onesimus from being a slave rather than just outright forbidding the practice as would any bishop today. We can see in Saint Paul the seed of our current teaching and how what was launched by him, speaking of the brotherhood of man, that this would eventually become the prohibition against slavery that we have today. The key to this kind of development is that the idea becomes more full and does not contradict what has come before.

God Bless!
